Tech show in Hyderabad offers 60 technologies for partnership to industry

Our Bureau, Hyderabad, Saturday, March 19, 2011, 08:00 Hrs [IST]

About 60 technologies were offered for partnership to the industry for exploring technology transfer and commercialization during the one-day technology show held in Hyderabad recently.

The show, jointly organised by Foundation for MSME Clusters (FMC) and SkyQuest, was done under the project 'Promoting Innovative Clusters in India', a project supported by Department of Science & Technology, Government of India. As part of the project FMC has identified over 100 technologies with the help of SkyQuest and out of that 60 were offered for partnership.

According to the organizers, more than 60 participants, which included members from the pharmaceutical and life sciences industry innovators and financial institutions, participated in the event. Apart from the 60 participants, six individual innovators participated presenting their innovative technologies. The presentations of technologies was followed by a one to one meeting between those offering technology and those interested in them, where more details about the technologies were shared. Over 20 expressions of interest were received and 20 one to one meetings have taken place. The organizers added that at least a few of them are expected to result in linkages taking place and the technologies move forward towards collaboration.

The one-day event, inaugurated by Karikal Valven, commissioner of industries, Government of Andhra Pradesh, was attended by Akash Bhavsar of SkyQuest, Mukesh Gulati, executive director, FMC and Ramchander, managing Director, Andhra Pradesh Industrial and Technical Consultancy Organisation (APITCO).
